

Instructor: ..... Date: .....

Learner: ..... Regional Branch: .....

Program: ..... Center: .....

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe hypothetical situations in written and spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What do you know about the people who do stunts in films and on television?
- Why do specialized people do the stunts, rather than the actors themselves?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about film and work.
- I can talk about habits in the past.
- I can talk about what is being done or what has been done.

Let's Explore!

Let's go to stunt school*!

* In "stunt school" you learn how to be a stunt person for film or TV.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

If you had realized what went into a film or TV show you might have looked at it differently. If you had been on the set with the production team you may have been shocked to see how much they support the director. If you had witnessed an action scene being filmed, you may have realized that actors acknowledge that stunt people are incalculable. More and more productions have started to feature special effects. This never used to be the case. They used to be far more difficult to present. As technology became available, the directors would put in more stunts. This changed everything. The stunt school was born.

In the past, stunt people would learn the ropes on the job. At first they may have been cast because of their athletic ability. They might have had some special skill. They could have come from a stunt family. That means that they have followed in a parent's footsteps. Today stunt actors are groomed at schools. They graduate after they learn to do numerous stunts convincingly and safely. They are beyond lucky if they never get hurt. Stunt people may have been more reckless and daring yesterday, but today they're not.

If you'd been on the set of a big action film, you might have heard that the stunt coordinator used to be a famous stunt person themselves. Planning stunts is key. Most have been choreographed as carefully as ballets. That way no one got hurt. Stunt school anyone?

Let's Practice!

Mark is trying to solve a crossword!

Instructions: Read the dialogue again. Complete the crossword writing the words that are being defined. First, read the clue. Then, write your answer. Use the words to write sentences. Use the sentences to model a conversation with your partner. Switch roles.

Down

2. The group of technical staff who produce a play, television show, recording, or film (two words).
5. To give help and encouragement to someone or something.
7. A part of a play or film in which the action stays in one place for a continuous period of time.
8. To choose actors to play particular parts in a play, film, or show.

Across

1. Incredibly fortunate (two words).
3. To see something happen.
4. To prepare someone for a special job or activity.
6. To recognize the truth of something.

Let's Practice!

What can we speculate about the history of stunt acting?

Instructions: Choose the words from the word bank to correctly complete the sentences. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

Word bank

- could have come
- might have had
- they may have been cast
- may have been
- they would have followed

1. At first _____ because of their athletic ability.
2. Stunt people _____ more reckless and daring yesterday, but today they're not.
3. They _____ some special skill.
4. They _____ from a stunt family.
5. That means _____ in a parent's footsteps

Extension Activity

Find out about stunt actors.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to the library and look up information about stunt actors.
- Make notes about one or two actors.
- Use the notes to write a text about stunt people's habits in the past. What did they do? How did they do it?
- Read your paragraphs to a partner and discuss the topic with him or her.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I find out about stunt actors in the past.

☐ ☐

I take notes about stunt actors.

☐ ☐

I write a text about what they would or used to do.

☐ ☐

I share my written work with a partner.

☐ ☐

I discuss the topic of stunt acting with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- to groom (verb): to prepare someone for a special job or activity e.g. Today stunt actors are groomed at schools.
- to witness (verb): to see something happen
e.g. If you had witnessed an action scene being filmed, you may have realized that actors acknowledge that stunt people are incalculable.
- to support (verb): to give help and encouragement to someone or something e.g. You may have been shocked to see how much they support the director.
- production team (noun): the group of technical staff who produce a play, television show, recording, or film e.g. If you had been on the set with the production team you may have been shocked to see how much they support the director.
- beyond lucky (expression): incredibly fortunate e.g. They are beyond lucky if they never get hurt.
- to acknowledge (verb): to recognize the truth of something e.g. Actors acknowledge that stunt people are incalculable.
- to present (verb): to give, provide, or make something known e.g. They used to be far more difficult to present.
- scene (noun): a part of a play or film in which the action stays in one place for a continuous period of time e.g. If you had witnessed an action scene being filmed, you may have realized that actors really rely on the stunt people.
- to cast (verb): to choose actors to play particular parts in a play, film, or show e.g. At first they may have been cast because of their athletic ability.

Learning Points

Talking Hypothetically and Speculating About the Past

You can use modals to talk about degrees of certainty and speculate about things in the past.

You use them to describe what is definite, probable, possible, or impossible from the speaker's point of view.

You use could have and would have to talk about things that were possible in the past and may or may not have happened (to speculate).

You often use these structures with the third conditional.

You can use must, may, might, and could to describe degrees of certainty.

You can use modals with the Present Perfect tense to talk about the possibility of a past event that is not clear in the present context.

Example:

If you had realized what went into a film or TV show you might have looked at it differently.

- May have has a slightly stronger meaning than might have or could have.
- You can add not to make a negative speculation (It may not have been true).

You use could have to talk about possibilities if something had been different in the past. For example:

They could have come from a stunt family.

You use would have to imagine a result if something had been different in the past. For example:

That means they would have followed in a parent's footsteps.

Examples:

- If you had been on the set with the production team, you may have been shocked to see how much they support the director.
- If you had witnessed an action scene being filmed, you may have realized that actors acknowledge that stunt people are incalculable.
- If you'd been on the set of a big action film, you might have heard that the stunt coordinator used to be a famous stunt person themselves.
- At first they may have been cast because of their athletic ability.
- They might have had some special skill.
- They could have come from a stunt family.
- That means they would have followed in a parent's footsteps.
- Stunt people may have been more reckless and daring yesterday, but today they're not.

Learning Points

Talking About the Past: The Present Perfect tense vs. The Simple Past tense, Used to and Would

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about many kinds of past events: short, quickly finished actions, longer situations and repeated events.

You use used to and would to talk about past habits which are now finished. There is an idea that circumstances have changed. You do not use it to talk about what happened at a past time.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience.

When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

For example: I have learned English. = I learned English in the past and now I can speak English.

Usually, when you use the Simple Past tense, the time of the finished action is clear from the context or explicitly mentioned in the sentence.

For example: Yesterday, I went to the store.*

It is clear when the action occurred. In this sentence we would not use the Present Perfect. (~~Yesterday, I have been to the store.~~).

Both used to and would talk about past habits which no longer exist, but there are a couple of things to note about the usage of these expressions.

1. Would cannot be used to talk about past states. You must use used to.

For example: I used to have a dog. ~~I would have a dog.~~

2. You use used to to talk about regular, important habitual behavior.

For example: I used to smoke. ~~I would smoke.~~

Examples:

- This never used to be the case.
- They used to be far more difficult to present.
- As technology became available, directors would put in more stunts.
- This changed everything.
- The stunt school was born.
- In the past, stunt people would learn the ropes on the job.
- They graduate after they've learned to do numerous stunts convincingly and safely.

