

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Making movies is hard work!

Learning Outcome

Describe situations in spoken interactions according to work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- Have you ever wanted to work in the movies? Why or why not?
- How usual or rare is it to work in the movies in your country?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about film and work.
- I can talk about habits in the past.
- I can talk about what is being done or what has been done.

Let's Explore!

They're holding auditions for the movie today!

* The verb that goes with the noun auditions is "hold". When words go together like this they are called collocations.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

While this, my new movie, is being made, my team has been thanked daily. Any director who is being supported by a strong production team should realize that they are beyond lucky. If they have ever been helped by as many other highly creative people as I have, they should acknowledge that their jobs have been made far easier. When they are being recognized, they are happy and appreciative.

This was the most important lesson I learned on my first film. That knowledge has helped me ever since. We have had some really complicated sets this time around. They could have caused problems. I was very confident, and saw every problem as a challenge to be overcome.

In the past I would have carefully arranged the indoor scenes. I used to keep an eye on the costumes being designed to make sure that everything was perfect.

I would hold auditions that included both cold readings and improvisations. I used to make sure I had more than enough time to choose the best actors for the job. I used to do too much. Then I started to let everyone do what they came to do. I have never looked back.

Today on set the actors have been left to me. The other work is being done by those I have come to trust and rely on. We've watched the rushes daily. They haven't disappointed us, so we continue. I'm glad I learned my lesson early. So are the others who work with me.

Let's Practice!

Let's identify tenses!

Instructions: Classify the words into the correct category. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

1. Any director who is being supported by a strong production team should realize that they are beyond lucky.
2. If they have ever been helped as many other highly creative people as I have.
3. They should acknowledge that their jobs have been made far easier.
4. When they are being recognized, they are happy and appreciative.
5. The other work is being done by those I have come to trust and rely on

Present perfect

Present continuous

Let's Practice!

Do you remember the definition?

Instructions: Draw a line to match the definitions in Column A with the words in Column B. Read the sentences aloud. Check your pronunciation with your instructor.

COLUMN A

1. beyond lucky
2. production team
3. audition
4. I've never looked back
5. rushes

COLUMN B

- a. a situation in which you have to hurry or move somewhere quickly
- b. the group of technical staff who produce a play, television show, recording, or film.
- c. unable to understand how incredibly fortunate a person can be
- d. a short performance that an artist gives in order to show they are suitable for a particular play, film, show, etc.
- e. to move forward with confidence and without regrets

Extension Activity

Find out what jobs people do in the movie industry.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Go online or to the library and look up jobs related to film production.
- Make notes on two different jobs that interest you.
- Use the notes to write a short summary of the job responsibilities.
- Explain why you might enjoy doing that job.
- Read your paragraphs to a partner.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I find out about jobs related to film production.

☐
☐

I use my notes to write about two different jobs that interest me.

☐
☐

I share my written work with a partner and discuss it.

☐
☐

Target Words

- to support (verb): to give help and encouragement to someone or something e.g. Any director who is being supported by a strong production team should realize that they are beyond lucky.
- production team (noun): the group of technical staff who produce a play, a television show, a recording, or a film e.g. Any director who is being supported by a strong production team is fortunate.
- beyond lucky (expression): extremely fortunate
e.g. That team is beyond lucky.
- to acknowledge (verb): to accept, admit, or recognize the truth of something e.g. They should acknowledge that their jobs have been made far easier.
- appreciative (adjective): being grateful for something e.g. When they are being recognized, they are happy and appreciative.
- to overcome (verb): to succeed in dealing with something difficult e.g. I was very confident, and saw every problem as a challenge to be overcome.
- audition (noun): to try out for a role in a play or film e.g. I would hold auditions that included both cold readings and improvisations.
- I've never looked back (expression): to move forward with confidence and without regrets e.g. I have never looked back.
- rushes (noun): the raw, unedited footage shot during the making of a movie e.g. We've watched the rushes daily.

Learning Points

Talking About the Past: The Present Perfect Tense vs. The Simple Past Tense and Used to and Would

You use the Present Perfect tense to talk about a past action or an action that began in the past that is connected to the present in some way.

You use the Simple Past tense to talk about many kinds of past events: short, quickly finished actions, longer situations and repeated events.

You use used to and would to talk about past habits which are now finished. There is an idea that circumstances have changed. You do not use it to talk about what happened at a past time.

You can use the Present Perfect tense to talk about experience.

When you use the Present Perfect tense, you think about the past and present together. There is some connection between what happened in the past and now.

For example:

I have learned English. = I learned English in the past and now I can speak English.

Usually, when you use the Simple Past tense, the time of the finished action is clear from the context or explicitly mentioned in the sentence.

For example:

Yesterday, I went to the store.*

It is clear when the action occurred. In this sentence we would not use the Present Perfect. (~~Yesterday, I have been to the store.~~).

Both used to and would talk about past habits which no longer exist, but there are a couple of things to note about the usage of these expressions.

1. Would cannot be used to talk about past states. You must use use to.

For example: I used to have a dog. ~~I would have a dog.~~

2. You use used to to talk about regular, important habitual behavior.

For example: I used to smoke. ~~I would smoke.~~

Examples:

- I used to do too much.
- Then I started to let everyone do what they came to do.
- I have never looked back.
- I was very confident, and saw every problem as as a challenge to be overcome.
- This was the most important lesson I learned on my first film.
- That knowledge has helped me ever since.
- We have had some really complicated sets this time around.

Learning Points

The Passive: The Present Continuous and Present Perfect Tenses

You use an active structure when you want the 'doer' of the action to be the subject.
You use a passive structure when you want the 'receiver' of the action to be the subject.

You use the Present Continuous to talk about an action that is happening at the time of speaking. The action or event is in progress.

Any director who a strong production team is supporting should realize that they are beyond lucky.

You use the Present Perfect to talk about a finished action or event with present consequences. There is a connection between what happened in the past and the present.

People on set have left the actors to me.

You often choose the passive form when you want to talk about an action but are not so interested in saying who or what does/did it. Passives without agents (the doers) are common in writing.

Look at the chart below for the structure of the passive voice.

Name	Structure	Example
Present Continuous	am/are/is + being + past participle	Any director who is being supported by a strong production team should realize that they are beyond lucky.
Present Perfect	have/has + been + past participle	Today on set the actors have been left to me.

Examples:

- When they are being recognized, they are happy and appreciative.
- While this, my new movie, is being made, my team has been thanked daily.
- If they have ever been helped by as many other highly creative people as I have, they should acknowledge that their jobs have been made far easier.
- Today on set the actors have been left to me.

